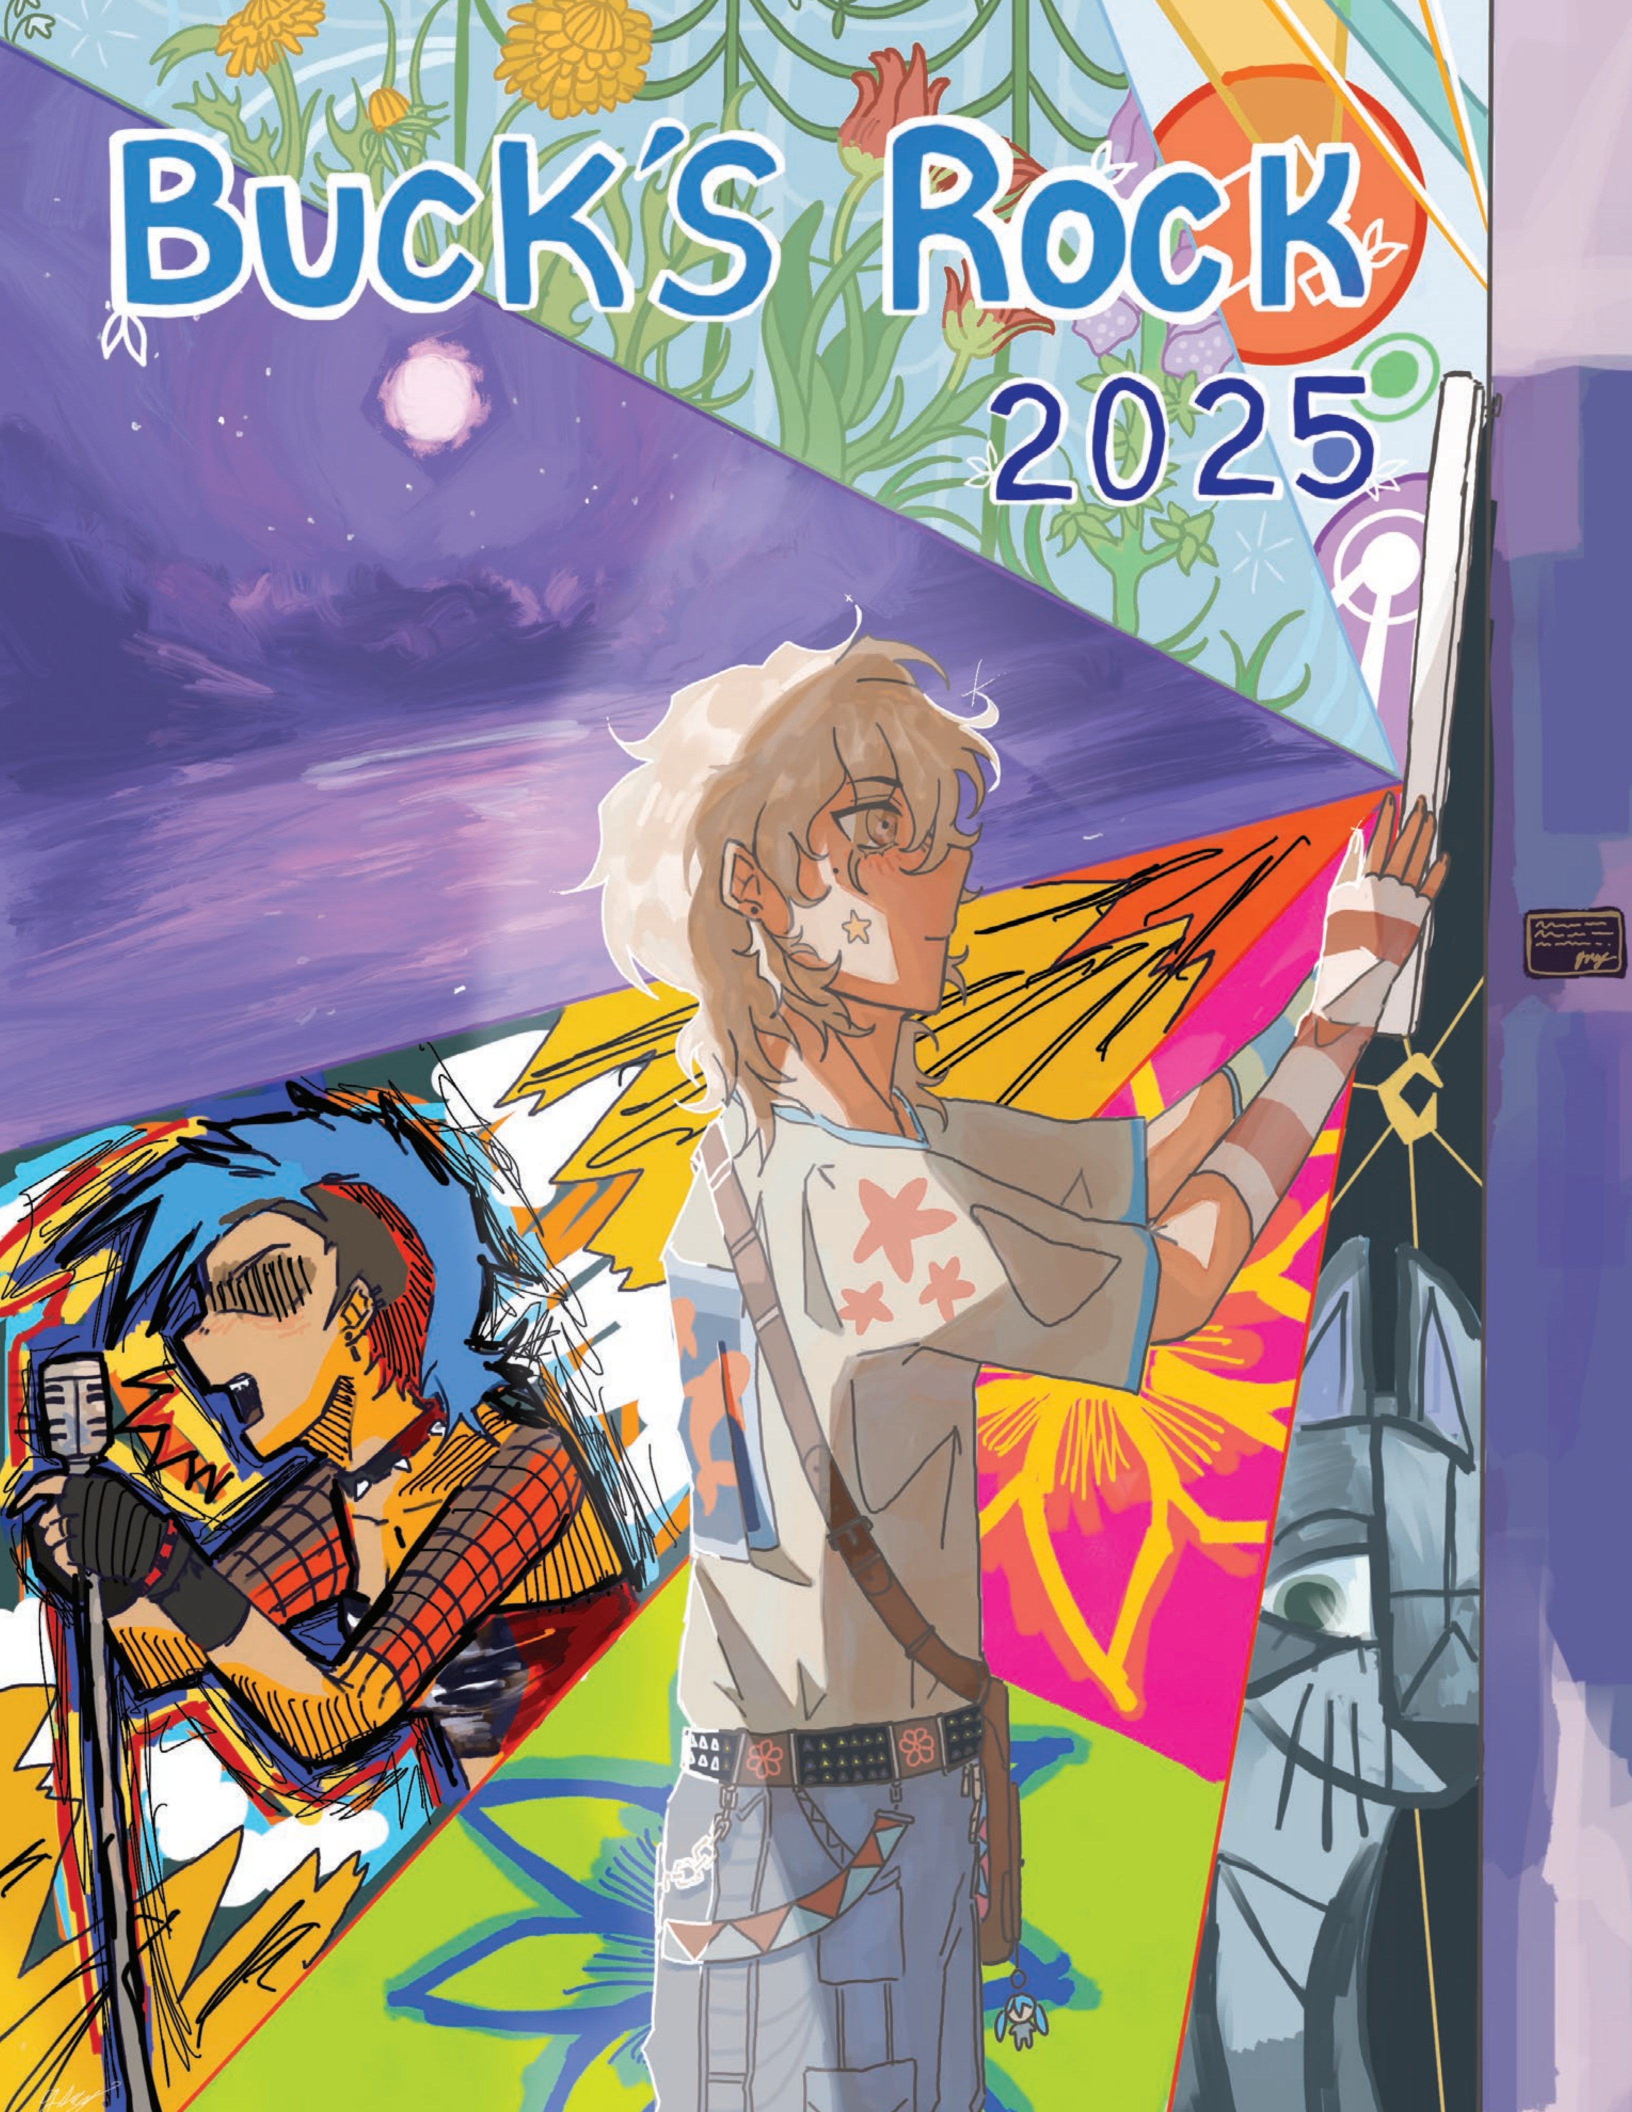
Buck's Rock
2025



In our POST IMPRESSIONISM Era

This year, as we honor 83 summers of Buck's Rock, we've chosen Art Movements as our theme—a tribute to the generations of artists who have shaped and been shaped by this extraordinary place.

Just as the great art movements throughout history have stirred imagination and sparked change, so too have the countless expressions of creativity here—through paint and pen, dance and song, drama and design. From the earliest days of campfires and canvas to the vibrant voices of today, every camper has added their unique brushstroke to the evolving masterpiece that is Buck's Rock.

In these pages, you'll find echoes of Impressionism, bursts of Expressionism, rhythms of Modernism and the fearless play of Abstract and Pop—each a mirror of the memories made during Summer 2025.

We invite you to explore this Yearbook not just as a collection of photos and stories, but as a gallery of moments—capturing the spirit of an 83-year journey in art, friendship and belonging.

Letter from our Editor-In-Chief

Hello, Friends and Family. My name is Tallulah "Gabriel" Marino, I am Editor-in-Chief for this year's yearbook.

The theme this year is Art movements, reflecting the generations of artists that have been to Buck's Rock. Art movements are diverse, just like the people at this camp; Art movements don't just apply to the Visual arts, but to the performing and literary arts as well. After all, art is subjective. We hope that this theme provided both the cohesion as well as the freedom that Buck's Rock represents.

Art is always changing, just like things change at this camp, from the new Pub staff that I've had the pleasure of working with this year, to the ice in the dining hall. We hope you will enjoy looking through this little time capsule of summer 2025. Who knows, maybe this will inspire you to join in on the Yearbook next year, or put yourself more out there, or go to that shop that you have always wanted to got to.

Time moves on, enjoy the best part of this movement in your time at camp.

As always, Thank you and Good Tidings,

Tallulah Marino (Gabriel)

DIRECTORS' WELCOME

BUCK'S ROCK 25

Art is never still. It moves. It provokes, transforms, reflects, and redefines. The theme of this summer's yearbook, Art Movements, reminds us not only of the sweeping changes that mark art history - from Impressionism to Surrealism to Dada - but also of the deeply personal movements that take place in our studios, theaters, workshops, and fields at Buck's Rock.

At its core, Buck's Rock has always been a living, breathing art movement. In our 83rd summer, our young artists didn't just explore existing genres, they invented new ones. Campers combined mediums, challenged traditions, and used their freedom of choice to push boundaries in both form and content. A collage becomes a puppet show; an improv session becomes a Clown sketch; a session of Dungeons & Dragons inspires a piece in the Painting Studio. Movements, literal and figurative, echoed across camp.

We've long said that Buck's Rock is where artists find themselves and their passions, but maybe it's more accurate to say it's where artists move. They move through new experiences, through failure and resilience, through friendship, through moments of independence that stay with them far beyond the summer. You could see it in the morning rush of campers headed to a new shop they'd never tried before. You could hear it in the applause for a debut theater performance or the quiet pride of someone who finally finished a wood project three weeks in the making.

And like the most impactful art movements in history, Buck's Rock thrives in community. What makes our work meaningful is not just what we make, but who we make it with. From spontaneous jam sessions in Studio 59 to packed houses for the Mushed Recitals and the Dance Show to collaborations between glassblowers and culinary artists, this was a summer of convergence and momentum - a celebration of both individual expression and collective energy.

As we close another summer together, we hope that this yearbook captures the many movements, big and small, that shaped 2025. We can't wait to see where your art, your voice, and your journey will take you next.

With love and gratitude,
Scott, Antonia, Lizzie and Alex

Garden

Marigolds are planted after the last frost, one inch deep and need six hours of sunlight. Flowers bloom and once pollinated, seeds can start over. Kinaesthetic art is a style that deals with the body in movement; using a sense of time, space and rhythm. We are un Clown Shop avec ennui and tres sadness. The clown is sad because the clown exists and the clown exists to make others sad. Laughing. Laughing. Without knowing. COSTUME

IN THE COSTUME SHOP, WE SPEND OUR DAYS SURROUNDED BY FABRIC, THREAD, HOT GLUE, AND IMAGINATION. SOME DAYS FEEL LIKE SCULPTURE, SOME LIKE PAINTING, AND SOME LIKE PURE ABSTRACT CHAOS. WE BRING CHARACTERS TO LIFE, BUILD STRANGE AND BEAUTIFUL THINGS, AND FIGURE IT OUT TOGETHER, ONE SAFETY PIN AT A TIME. IT ISN'T ALWAYS NEAT, BUT IT'S ALWAYS CREATIVE.

TAMARA LEMPICKA (1898-1980)

ART DECO IS A VISUAL DESIGN THAT WAS POPULAR IN THE 1920S AND THE 1930S, PARTICULARLY IN THE UNITED STATES. IT IS KNOWN FOR ITS GEOMETRIC SHAPES, RICH COLORS AND LUXURIOUS MATERIALS. TAMARA LEMPICKA WAS A POLISH PAINTER WELL KNWON FOR HER ART DECO PORTRAITS OF ARISTOCRATS.

STURREALISM IS A HUMAN PERFORMANCE SUB-GENRE WITHIN SURREALISM THAT AIMS TO REVOLUTIONIZE AND DOCUMENT THE HUMAN EXPERIENCE —BOTH SACRED & PROFANE— THROUGH MOVEMENT. IT BALANCES A RATIONAL VISION OF LIFE WITH ONE THAT ASSERTS THE POWER OF THE UNCONSCIOUS WITH THE INCAPACITY TO COUNT PAST 8. THESE MOVEMENT ARTISTS FIND MAGIC AND BIZARRE BEAUTY IN THE UNEXPECTED AND THE UNCANNY, THE DISREGARDED AND THE UNCONVENTIONAL... NOT TO MENTION VALUING STRANGENESS FOR STRANGENESS'S SAKE. SEE IN THIS ILLUSTRATION HOW THESE STUDENTS OF THE FORM, WHEN PERFORMING THEIR STURREALIST WORKS, STAND IN BOLD ALLIANCE WITH THE STUPENDOUS.

MUSHED

Claude Debussy (1862–1918)

Debussy was a French composer whose works were a seminal force in the music of the 20th century. He developed a highly original system of harmony and musical structure that expressed in many respects the ideals to which the Impressionist and Symbolist painters and writers of his time aspired.

Who invented music? I'd like to shake their hand.
Who wrote the song cycle, started the first band?
Romanticism codified strong impressions with harmonically imbued emotional expressions.
Modernists rejected the major scale, embracing 12–tones, where pleasures fail.
Buck's Rock shines with or without those ledger lines.
Our hearts sing, keeping time as the old gong rings.

Roy Lichtenstein was a American Pop Artist known for his paintings that imitate comic book art.

Throughout the years Buck's Rock has been open, we've seen the movement of different eras in music through what has been played on the Radio. From Classic Rock of the 60s & 80s to the most silly & experimental Sound Collages, almost anything can be transferred to your ears from our Station.

Georges Braque (1882-1963)

Georges Braque was a French artist and cofounder of Cubism. Along with Pablo Picasso he developed the radical style of shifting points-of-view, limited color palettes, and collaged elements. “The goal is not to be concerned with the reconstitution of an anecdotal fact, but with constitution of a pictorial fact.”

STUDIO 59

Salvador Dali (1904-1989)

Dali was a Spanish painter known for his surreal and bizarre paintings executed with precise detail. Dalí was deeply influenced by Sigmund Freud’s theories on the unconscious mind and dreams, and developed the “Paranoiac-Critical” method to access his subconscious.

Studio 59 is honored to have had so many campers and CITs visit this summer. Many made music, most visited for the air conditioning, but all left feeling more inspired to create. We are so happy to have helped you reach your goals this summer!

June 6 When I Was 28

By Valis Schanzer

The day we went to the beach there were eggshells on the sand. Someone had a picnic there, and they had littered onto the clean, white, glittering expanse, broken in spots only by the reds and blues of the beach towels which dotted the sand dunes and farther up the coast as it stretched out of view.

I had imagined the couple who had done it, near thirty years of age like Sam and I, with a striped beach towel.
I couldn't imagine a family, as I thought that anyone with a small child would certainly have enough self-awareness to not drop their trash where people might sit, and that young parents were often hyper focused on their manners, fighting embarrassment as their child crawled or threw up on anything within reach.

This is why I thought of us.

I pictured a mustache, and a cooler filled to the brim with different types of deli meats, each layered on top of the other in rows, so that when you opened it the bright pinks and deep reds jumped out at you.
I wanted to draw the couple, and their livelihood, but I don't draw anymore.

Sam unfolded the beach towel—he was used to doing things for me at this point—and licked his thumb.
I watched him toss the beach umbrella from one hand to the other, like a team-building exercise with just one person, and decide where to put it. I watched him stick his hand into the ice of our cooler.
I watched him uncap a bottle of 70 spf sunscreen. I watched him say something to me.

I didn't know why we were at the beach, what its purpose was. We had left the baby with a sitter, this girl named Laine who was my mother's friend's daughter. She did everything for us because my mother had told her that something was wrong with me.

I think Sam wanted to say something to me. His mouth was moving but no sound was coming out.
I noticed his hair was getting long, it was wavy and had a sort of glassy sheen to it.
The stubble on his chin was coming in.

I think he was trying to ask me a question.
Maybe why I couldn't eat, couldn't sleep, couldn't draw, not even flowers or puppy dogs, anymore.
Couldn't even hear him as he sat right there, stately and right. He was perfect, beautiful.

I stared down at my knees, they were getting sunburned, turning raw underneath the daffodil sundress.

I didn't love the baby, or anything after it.

Sam was peeling an egg, the color underneath was almost translucent. He was tossing the shells on the clean, white hot sand of the beach.

Remember

By Tova Perelson

I don't remember how I got into the forest by myself. I remember what plants I can eat and which are poisonous, but where I learned this is a mystery to me.

By now, I've adapted to living in the woods. Maybe I've been camping before. I can't remember.

One thing I didn't know how to do in my first memory was build shelters. Since then I've learned.

My first memory is of waking up in the forest, alone. Before then, I don't know.

Sometimes I wonder. Where did I come from? Who am I? Where am I? How did I get here? Is anyone else here, wherever here is? Sometimes I wonder, but I never get answers.

I mentally shake myself. I need to get food. The sky above me is partially obscured by pine trees, but the part I can see is dark and scattered with stars.

I stand up.,I have been sitting outside of the small hut that has evolved into my home since I built it. I don't remember exactly when I built it. Along with my memories, my concept of time seems to have faded.

My second memory is of sitting up. The bright sunlight warmed my face. I looked up in wonderment – I couldn't remember having ever seen light. Maybe I never had.

I stretch out my legs and proceed to forage for my next meal. Spotting a black raspberry bush, I quicken my pace. I walk for what I believe to be quite a while, but the bush remains in the distance. I sigh and turn around to head back to my clearing.

I blink. I'm confident that there was a clearing.

Where the clearing was, there is now another patch of trees. I suddenly feel exhausted. I sit down on a nearby rock. What now? Do I try to find the clearing? Keep walking to the black raspberry bush?

I'm too tired to think, so I simply lay down on the forest floor and close my eyes.

When I wake up, I feel something moving near me. I sit up.
There is a small bird curled up in a nest of moss. Instinctively, I pick up the nest in cupped hands.

The bird and I live side by side for a while. I find food for myself, and the bird pulls worms from the ground and seeds from plants.

Eventually, I realize that I've just been referring to the bird as "the bird." If we're going to live together, she needs a name.
It's strange that that's what I thought. I don't remember my own name. I don't remember if I ever had one.

The Fly In My Brain Named Larry

By Bodhi Lawson Sroka

Okay, let me give some context. About 2 years ago, my brain moved to Hawaii. He was very displeased with the living conditions, and wanted to see a live volcano. So he went.

Before he left, we had a little fly problem. There are no showers, so he kind of stunk. He blamed the landlord. He got some pesticides and sprayed the place, but after he left, we found out that there was one little guy left, a fly named Larry. I didn't expect to be able to have another pilot like my brain!

And I was gosh-darn right! Larry lives rent free in there and just pushes buttons from time to time. Larry has a box, and whatever's in it refills every week or so. It smells strongly of alcohol, and he's a bit of a drunkard, so I think it's whiskey. He has a decently pretty girlfriend, Janet, and she is also a bit on the tipsy side. Recently, I've been hearing crying in there, along with the usual drunk bumps from him flying around, so either Janet's had kids, or she broke up with him. If she had kids, I'm doomed. I already have to deal with 2 of them, please don't add 150 more.

To be honest, I don't even know how he got a girlfriend! He's probably been to prison like, what, 5 times? I swear, the cops probably have 20 different mug shots of him. He's robbed the bank in about 3 instances, and every time he didn't get farther than "what do you mean this snickers isn't a knife?" He's also gotten arrested for taking a 70 liter shipment of oil to some guys who told him they were firefighters, but turned out to be arsonists. He cleared that one up.

Larry's a very unhealthy man. He knows he's going to die soon, so to extend his lifespan, he took a gamble and enchanted a brain hair with some voodoo magic thingamajigger and made a deal with the devil. Now he doesn't die until my brain comes back, and I can't charge him rent. Also I think that's how the whiskey case keeps refilling. But when he does die, THE DEVIL GETS HIS SOUL. Ooooh... I can't wait for that day!

I've been trying to kick Larry out for several weeks now, but he's being a whiny little stinker about it and arguing with me. If he has kids, I'll be really sad about kicking him out, but I'll have to. I don't want to evict a child, much less 150 of them, but I also don't want to have to deal with the maintenance costs.

Larry is a HUMONGOUS fan of American football. I mean, what else do you expect from a no-rent, beer-drinking, AMERICAN bug like him? He loves the Chiefs and if anybody else wins he gets absolutely sour for the next 2 days. One time the basketball game was on, and the Tigers won, which MAY I ADD is the SAME STATE, and he freaked out. He woke up once to pee and otherwise didn't get out of bed for the next day, and neither did I because he pilots my gosh darned cranium.

Larry likes TV. He especially likes old musicals like "The Music Man", and "La La Land". He watches them with Janet. They cuddle up real sweet and it almost makes him seem like a person. They get the popcorn and share an unhealthy amount of whiskey, and their favorite part of any musical is the one where Tony dies in "West Side Story".

They.
Go.
WILD.

Like, I wake up at 3 AM with a splitting headache because Larry's overturned the table. Oh my god, I just realized as I was saying this, his kids are COOKED. This literal felon is going to be living in a less-than-1-square-foot cave, with 150 kids, and he'll be watching TV all day, drinking whiskey, and Oh. My. God. I can't WAIT for when they hit puberty! Take that Larry! You don't deserve Janet! I hope she breaks up with you and you slip and fall into the Mississippi River! BWAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA!

Anyways, PLEASE HELP ME GET THESE GUYS OUT. I'll pay anybody who can a handsome sum of money... what? How much? Five dollars!? I was thinking more like three... but I can make that work! Anyways, please help out. God bless my head, lord pray it doesn't get cracked from their next movie night. I think the next one's "Hairspray".

Alphonse Mucha (1860-1939)

A Czech painter, illustrator, and graphic artist widely known for his distinctly stylized and decorative theatrical posters.

PUB is considered one of the hearts of camp. It's old, busy, and always full of life. It's never ending joy and chaos–and we wouldn't have it any other way!

Our shop can be very hot (despite our temperamental AC), yet people still choose to cross through our door.

We consider PUB a home, with our very own little family. Thank you Buck's Rock!

(Approved by Kai Gietzen)

(BEST SHOP EVER!!)

Ye olde pub,
how I love thee so the perfect pint
what a way to go.
The shine of thy blue light,
the humming of the birds in the wall.
Ye olde pub,
the one I yearn for,
the glow of the fish lights,
the buzz of thy printer,
the whistle of joy.
Ye olde pub,
the place I call home.
The moat of the floor,
the wall of the staff only,
the forbidden chair,
thy never can sit in.
The curled wire on thine walls
what does it say?
Helo? Hel? Phel? Pub? Peb?
Thy mind is too small to comprehend your vastness.
Oh ye old pub,
thine home away from home.
